Amplifying the Whispers, Making the Voices Heard

Dr. Jacob H. Carruthers
1930 - 2004

Dr. Charshée McIntyre
1934 - 1999

Dr. John Henrik Clarke
1915 - 1998

Dr. Cheikh Anta Diop
1923 - 1986

With poise and promise, The Association for the Study of Classical African Civilizations (ASCAC) welcomes your participation in its 23rd Annual Ancient Kemet (Egyptian) Studies Conference. This year's theme, Maa Kheru (True of Voice) Amplifying the Whispers, Making the Voices Heard, intensifies our efforts as we continue our work to restore, reclaim and revitalize the African Way. As such, our theme allows us the opportunity to honor and study the giant pillars of African Deep Thought.

With a true voice, Dr. Jacob Carruthers articulates good speech as a requisite of good character, the necessity of intergenerational transmission of wisdom and unmasks daily the enemies in our intellectual warfare.

With a true voice, Dr. Charshée McIntyre embraces complimentary dualities, unveils the criminalization of a race, exposes the current and continuing social injustices.

With a true voice, Dr. John Henrik Clarke embellishes the need for unity through Pan Africanism lest we perish as he turns the hands of history's clock.

With a true voice, Dr. Cheikh Anta Diop reveals the origins of civilization, defends our humanity and magnifies the importance of a multidisciplinary approach to scientific study.

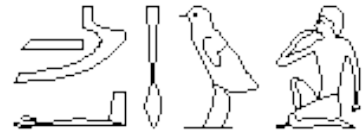

Through their lives and works, our ancestors compel us to use the African Worldview to fulfill their ancestral command to take account of where the African world has been, what we have done and what we must yet do and be.

Thus, plan to be highly inspired as the last spoken word penetrates your mind, embraces your heart, and propels your actions to effectively and dramatically amplify the whispers of our ancestral guidance and make their voices heard.

Building for Eternity,

Queen Nzinga Ratibisha Henu
